Woven Through Time

The cultures and histories of Utah's Indigenous peoples are woven into their baskets. Since time immemorial, baskets have been essential tools for daily life that helped Indigenous people thrive. Today, making baskets supports some Indigenous families as a source of income. Baskets continue to hold deep spiritual significance for Indigenous peoples. Each one contains knowledge passed down through generations. Learn about the evolving cultures of Utah's tribal nations through the stories told by their baskets in this exhibit from the Natural History Museum of Utah, sponsored by Zions Bank.

The exhibit was created in consultation with representatives of the 8 sovereign tribal nations of Utah

Confederated Tribes of the Goshute Reservation; Navajo Nation; Northwestern Band of the Shoshone Nation; Paiute Indian Tribe of Utah; San Juan Southern Paiute Tribe; Skull Valley Band of Goshute; Ute Indian Tribe; Ute Mountain Ute, White Mesa Community
